

The Herald Sun

Crucified body of NSW's 'Rack Man' identified after 25 years

After 25 years a coroner using new DNA technology has identified the body of a man who was discovered crucified at the bottom of the Hawkesbury River in NSW. True Crime Australia's Charles Miranda has told Sky News known gambler Max Tancevski left his Sydney house in 1993 on a betting spree but has no known links to the underworld, despite investigations pursuing the possibility at the time he went missing. Mr Miranda says police still have no idea who committed the murder, but the information has been passed on to the cold case homicide squad to investigate further.

Source: <https://www.heraldsun.com.au/news/national/crucified-body-of-nsws-rack-man-identified-after-25-years/video/6d5c438116c9c4747372a237ed933f8d>