

Dutch article from April 4, 2013 and the translation underneath it.

<https://www.echo.nl/dode-vrouw-groeneveen-na-elf-jaar-geidentificeerd-2/>

A dead woman who was found in Amsterdam in 2002 was identified eleven years later. The woman was found dead on 1 December (The Doe file says found on December 2, but because we have so little unidentified women, you can be sure this is her) in an elevator in an apartment building, called 'Groeneveen' in Amsterdam.

"The woman is from Cameroon, her body was returned to the family on Monday, April 15," reports a spokesperson for the police.

The police in Amsterdam started a project two years ago in which 91 unidentified bodies are being re-examined. The woman is the 23rd body that could still be identified. The police tracked their identity by means of a fingerprint.