In an update shared on Facebook on Friday, June 20, the HSPD said Milsak had been found on Thursday, June 19, and was “safe.”

Milsak allegedly walked into a gas station in Little Rock, Ark. — which is about 55 miles east of where she initially disappeared — on Thursday, June 19, and told gas station employees that she had been missing, per a police incident report obtained by Newsweek.

Police were called to the scene, at which point Milsak allegedly told authorities that she had run away from home the previous year.

Authorities confirmed her identity, and Milsak was then taken into custody by Little Rock Police due to an outstanding warrant in Garland County, per THV 11.
